The performance and holdings in this document are for the Model Portfolio and are not a guarantee or an indication of the actual performance or holdings of a client's portfolio due to differences in the timing and transaction prices for portfolio changes, client investments and withdrawals during the period, timing of receipt of dividends and income distributions, platform administration fees, transactional costs associated with the client's portfolio, and any portfolio exclusions required by the client. Past performance is not a reliable indicator or guarantee of any future performance. The value of an investment may rise or fall with the changes in the market. Inflation is measured by the Consumer Price Index (CPI). We use the most recent CPI as an estimate until the actual CPI is available from the Australian Bureau of Statistics.

YEARS OF INVESTMENT
INNOVATION

What happened in markets over the month?

- Global shares (hedged) delivered positive returns, while currency movements detracted from unhedged outcomes.
- In the United States, share markets eased slightly after reaching record highs in January. Whilst optimism on Artificial Intelligence 'AI' and strong corporate profit results remain supportive for Wall Street, President Trump's tariffs provided turbulence after the US Supreme Court ruled against their legitimacy. President Trump responded with an immediate 10% global tariff that could rise to 15%. The threat of US military action against Iran was also a concern that led to a sharp rise in global oil prices. European shares made strong gains with business surveys showing solid growth prospects and inflation remaining low.
- Chinese shares disappointed with investors taking profits after a strong rally over recent months. Concerns over China's subdued retail spending and the weak residential property market appear to be reviving. Japan's share market surged to historic highs with the new government pledging tax relief for consumers.
- Listed infrastructure performed strongly, and bond markets generated modest gains amid ongoing policy uncertainty and elevated geopolitical risk.
- Australian Shares made strong gains driven by Materials which benefitted from rising gold, metal and oil prices and Financials with the large banks results beating expectations.
- Australia's economic data has been mixed with strong job gains but softer household spending. The key issue remains high inflation. Headline consumer inflation came in at 3.8% in the year to January. This may lead to another Reserve Bank interest rate hike after February's move to raise the cash rate to 3.85%.

What happened in the Portfolio?

The Portfolio generated a positive return for the month, with global share markets recording modest gains in February, driven largely by European shares, while US and Asian markets delivered mixed outcomes. European shares were supported by improving business-survey data, pointing to firmer growth momentum, alongside persistently low inflation.

- The Realindex Wholesale Global Share – Hedged fund outperformed its benchmark by 2.0% in February. Performance was stock-selection led. Positive selection in Technology, Industrials, Healthcare, Energy and Consumer Defensive outweighed weaker picks in Financials, Communication Services and Consumer Cyclical. Tech selection benefited from ongoing AI-infrastructure spend and easing Chip-on-Wafer-substrate advanced-packaging bottlenecks that support next-gen accelerators, aiding upstream enablers in the value chain.
- The Ironbark Royal London Wholesale Concentrated Global Shares (Hedged) fund outperformed its benchmark by 1.1% over February. Results were driven by stock selection. Basic Materials, Industrials, Healthcare and Financials added, offsetting weaker Technology, Consumer Cyclical and Communication Services. Top contributors included TSMC (ADR), Safran, and HCA Healthcare; TSMC benefited from structural AI demand and momentum in advanced packaging (HBM/CoWoS) that remains critical for AI accelerators, supporting sentiment toward the foundry leader.
